Understand the active list

An active list is a table of Pricing Quotation work. The headers tell you which request, person, supplier, client, stage, date, or price each row contains.

The main RFQ list shows these headers:

Header	What to use it for
Package no.	Identify the package.
Sales job No.	Identify the related sales job.
Purchaser	See the purchasing owner.
Offer type	See the offer type.
Bid due date	Check the bid deadline.
Sub-supplier	See the sub-supplier.
Client	See the client.
RFQ stage	Check the request's stage.
Package title	Identify the package subject.

The headers change with the list you select. All uses Package stage; RFQs uses RFQ stage; Quotations adds Offer price and Offer price in €. The list also shows Refresh, Table Layout, and Settings as titled controls.

Count: 21

Your saved list layout determines the headers you see, so use the headers currently shown in your list when you compare rows. The list supports column reordering and resizing. It displays 30 records per page and provides page-navigation buttons.

The standard grid displays the record count, offer total, order total, and order-backlog total in the configured main currency. The grid has a visible header filter. Filter Row exposes filter cells beneath the column headings; apply the criteria with the filter action or by pressing Enter. Grouping starts collapsed when it is available. The standard grid's columns, visibility, data types, widths, and captions come from the selected saved layout, so the concrete column set can differ between accounts or saved layouts.

The Orders tab is not available on this screen.

The primary list shows 18 additional visible controls without text labels. The screen has no labelled form fields. Use the titled controls when you need to refresh, change the list layout, or open settings.

The detailed procedures for these four outcome lists are in Pricing Quotation exception lists.

Result: The selected archived list opens with its outcome-specific headers.

When the list does not match

Use this procedure when a filter, subscription, or saved layout prevents you from getting the list view you expect.

Prerequisites

- You have opened the Pricing Quotation list.

Steps

1. Match what you see with the alternatives below and follow the corresponding action.

What you see	What to do
Forbidden characters detected. Please remove them and try again.	Remove the forbidden characters from the filter and submit it again.
The list or its tabs do not appear	Check that your account includes the Buyout Job Module.
The headers differ from another list	Work from the headers currently shown in your saved list layout.

Result: The filter is corrected, the subscription requirement is identified, or you have the current saved-layout headers to use for comparison.

Export availability depends on your access. Opening a record from a data row and using an alternate saved layout are separate actions from choosing a list tab.

Know what is next

A Pricing Quotation row identifies work that can continue in its record. Select a data-row cell other than the edit-cell area to open the corresponding Pricing Quotation record. From there, continue in Pricing Quotation RFQs for RFQ work or Pricing Quotation quotations for quotation work.

To keep the list open while opening a record, open the row context menu and select Open in new tab.

Use Pricing Quotation exception lists for the four Archived outcome lists. Use Pricing Quotation overview for the wider work flow.

Result: You have the list that matches your work and the focused page for the next record task.
